DAVID BRUCE

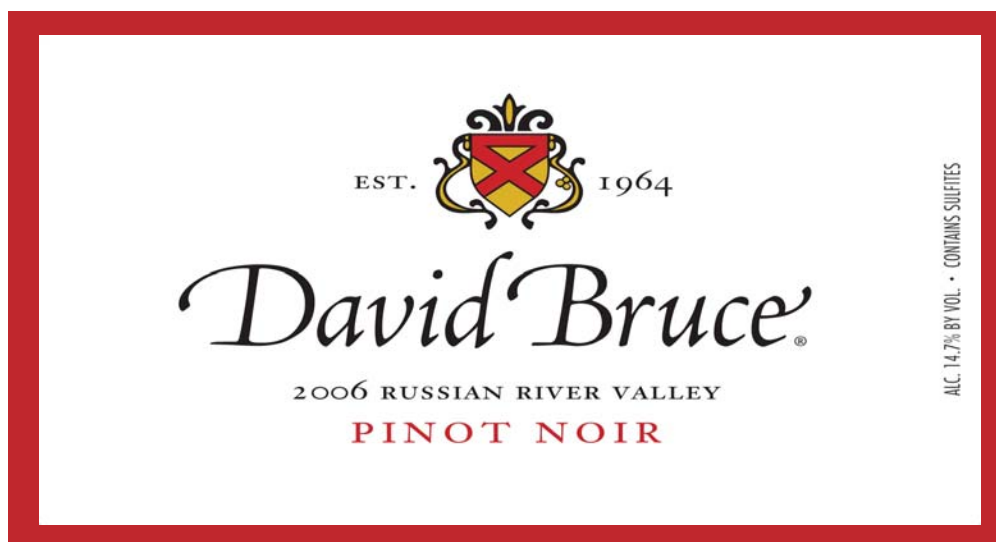

Pinot Noir

Russian River Valley 2006

88 points

in their October 2009 issue

Scents of tart cherries with a slight drift towards a lemony note take the aromas slightly off the typical Pinot track, and, in truth, acidity is never far from the scene in the wine's pert, nicely fruity flavors. Full in body, a bit stiff in the latter palate, yet structured for uses with tangy, marinated meats or seared tuna steaks, this one could use a few years of aging.
