“Sauvignon Blanc may not have quite the range of diversity as Chardonnay or Riesling, but its potential for stylistic variation should not be underestimated. Whether its main trait is an invigorating, goosebumpy acidity, or has been made in a mellower, oak influenced style, Sauv Blanc can fit into a myriad of different categories. This offering from Foppiano’s venerable vintners falls more in the former category, with refreshing citrus flavors and a crisp finish. The wine’s fairly substantial body enables the wine to dovetail tastily with a wide variety of foods, from seafood to poultry and even pork.” -Marguerite
