

2009 Electra

Electra is electricity in the mouth! With the first sip you feel the wine: light as springtime, delicately sweet, refreshingly crisp, a bouquet of flowers with the taste of peach and melon.

Electra is a picnic wine—for drinking outside, in warm weather. It is acceptable to serve Electra on the rocks.

Electra is more than just a light alcohol version of Essensia. In 1990 we had the idea to create a new style of wine: softer, fresher, easier to drink, and very grapy in taste.

To make Electra, free run juice is fermented for more than a month at low temperature. When the wine contains about 4% alcohol, the fermentation is arrested by chilling. It is then sterile bottled.

Electra goes with summer fruits (strawberries, nectarines, peaches, melons), salads, spicy Asian and Indian foods, light desserts, blue skies and fresh air. And with only 4% alcohol, you can still play volleyball after the picnic.

You can use Electra to make sorbets or granitates. Place in your freezer, in a covered stainless steel container. When frozen, spoon into very cold glassware.
